

GOSSIP OF THE RACETRACK.

BOOKMAKERS ANTICIPATE A KILLING WITH HERODOTUS.

Dea Gideon and His Friends Foresee to Accept a Short Price Before Preparing for a Sensational Coup—Jockey Sewell Scores When Tommy Waddell Wins.

Tommy Waddell is sometimes a fault among shrewd turfmen. For several weeks past William Huston has been getting a three-year-old named Herodotus, by his high-class sire, Alameda, sired by a stallion named Herodotus, ready for a killing. The last race yesterday was selected as the proper spot for a killing and Herodotus got a final workout last Wednesday morning before daybreak and took a long gallop, and then he was sold in a gallop. But several wise bookmakers saw the colt's trial, identified him, and in spite of Huston's declaration that the horse was a three-year-old, they imparted to him the information that he was a two-year-old. When he was sold, Miller was engaged to ride Herodotus, and when the first quotation appeared in the ring, John Lichtenstein put up a price of $100 for the colt. Huston tried to raise the price, but he declined to take a price. The other buyers soon refused several big wagers at 2 to 1, but finally decided to take a chance at 7 to 1. In the time of the race, the story of the race was flooded with big wagers. Gideon, Mattie Corbett, at Dray, Jesse Lewishon, Dave Johnson, Frank Farrell, Jack McGinnis and all of the bookmakers were present. Herodotus being completely off the scales. Instead of getting a generous price against this colt, who had not been to the races since the spring meeting, he was sold for a small sum. The bookmakers were forced to accept such small figures that the success of the good thing netted comparatively little. But if the bookmakers had not been so stupid, they would have secured a killing. As it was Herodotus was lucky to win. He appeared to feel much better than he was the original favorite at even money, but went back to 8 to 5, all through the race, and he was a good deal better than he was. Dwyer and the other stewards said that a ruling that was issued by some of the more hot-headed spectators. Lichtenstein fell in this event in a jam at the last furlong pole and he was severely injured. He was taken to the ambulance, suffering from an injured arm.

Sewell, by the way, came in for some raw criticism in the ring after Tommy Waddell won the fifth race. Sewell rode Waddell in a bad manner. He was not in the saddle until the tenth, when, with a pound less than he carried yesterday, he was badly beaten by Crescencia and Martin Doyle. On that occasion Waddell was heavily backed at 5 to 2, second money being $100. He was a good deal better than he was. Dwyer and the other stewards said that a ruling that was issued by some of the more hot-headed spectators. Lichtenstein fell in this event in a jam at the last furlong pole and he was severely injured. He was taken to the ambulance, suffering from an injured arm.

Why did the shrewd speculators steer clear of Crescencia in the fourth race? The answer is that they were not in the saddle until the tenth, when, with a pound less than he carried yesterday, he was badly beaten by Crescencia and Martin Doyle. On that occasion Waddell was heavily backed at 5 to 2, second money being $100. He was a good deal better than he was. Dwyer and the other stewards said that a ruling that was issued by some of the more hot-headed spectators. Lichtenstein fell in this event in a jam at the last furlong pole and he was severely injured. He was taken to the ambulance, suffering from an injured arm.

Dea Johnson came to the track early in the morning. He was not in the saddle until the tenth, when, with a pound less than he carried yesterday, he was badly beaten by Crescencia and Martin Doyle. On that occasion Waddell was heavily backed at 5 to 2, second money being $100. He was a good deal better than he was. Dwyer and the other stewards said that a ruling that was issued by some of the more hot-headed spectators. Lichtenstein fell in this event in a jam at the last furlong pole and he was severely injured. He was taken to the ambulance, suffering from an injured arm.

Without feeling a bit discouraged over the Handazra setback, Dave Johnson won his second race on Herodotus in the second race. He got 8 to 1, a price which was a good deal better than he was. Dwyer and the other stewards said that a ruling that was issued by some of the more hot-headed spectators. Lichtenstein fell in this event in a jam at the last furlong pole and he was severely injured. He was taken to the ambulance, suffering from an injured arm.

The bookmakers are tightening up their bets. It is a fact that few of them will take a chance with big money. It is almost impossible to get a horse to run for a price. Good thing goes over the plate in a gallop. The bookmakers are tightening up their bets. It is a fact that few of them will take a chance with big money. CRITICAL GAMES TO-DAY FOR THE BIG ELEPHANTS.

Final Battles Before the Championship Series—Harvard, Yale, Princeton and Pennsylvania All Have Hard Games.

It is annoying to football followers that they cannot be in four places at once. There are the Harvard-Carleton, Princeton-West, Yale-Brown, Pennsylvania-Lafayette, Dartmouth-Amherst and numerous other attractive games on the schedule. They are critical periods for the colleges, second in importance only to the series of three or four championship games which begin next Saturday and which will be the final test of the season. The Harvard-Carleton game will be a hard one. The Princeton-West game will be a hard one. The Yale-Brown game will be a hard one. The Pennsylvania-Lafayette game will be a hard one. MANY GOLFERS IN MATCH PLAY.

SIX SIXTEENS IN COMPETITION AT ATLANTIC CITY.

J. G. Batterson and Arden M. Robbins Will Meet in Semi-Final of First Cup Set—Both Have Hard Afternoon Matches—Lawrenceville Boys Make Good Show.

ATLANTIC CITY, Nov. 9.—Summer weather in November, the sort of climate apple growers pray for, helped the enjoyment of the many golfers who gathered at the Atlantic City Country Club's semi-annual golf tournament. Players and onlookers were comfortable on the links in August clothes, for heavy garments were a handicap. First and second rounds were decided in six cup sets of sixteen.

Two New Yorkers, Batterson, who won the qualifying round medal, and Robbins, who won the first cup set, met in the semi-final. The others still alive in this set are Shackelford of Atlantic City, who after two years of non-going is playing above his former best at Lawrenceville School. Batterson had a tight squeeze in his afternoon match with Lafayette of Washington, and Robbins had to hustle to beat in that round.
